1. Executive Summary

Papina Farms Ltd is a Malawian agribusiness and agricultural value-chain development company focused on strengthening the connection between smallholder farmers, organised producer groups, markets, agro-processing, youth enterprise development and investment. The company works across farmer mobilisation, production support, aggregation, agricultural off-taking, market linkage, value addition, agro-processing, marketing and agribusiness development.

2. Company Background

Papina Farms began as an agricultural cooperative initiative working with farmers and communities to promote agricultural production, food security and livelihood opportunities. As its activities, partnerships and ambitions expanded, the organisation was subsequently registered as Papina Farms Ltd to broaden its programmes, geographical catchment areas and capacity to engage with development partners, government institutions, buyers, investors and other stakeholders.

The transition to a limited company provided a stronger commercial and institutional platform while retaining the company's commitment to smallholder farmers, cooperatives and community development. Papina Farms continues to build on its cooperative roots through commercially oriented relationships with farmer organisations and market partners.

3. Vision & Mission

Vision: To become a leading Malawian agribusiness partner connecting smallholder farmers to sustainable markets, value addition, investment and livelihood opportunities.

Mission: To enhance food, nutrition and livelihood security through inclusive agricultural value chains, smallholder farmer development, market access, value addition, youth empowerment and sustainable enterprise development.

4. Strategic Objectives

- Strengthen smallholder farmer organisations and participation in commercial agriculture.
- Improve market access through aggregation, off-taking and market-linkage services.
- Promote local value addition and agro-processing.
- Create practical economic opportunities for youth through skills and enterprise development.
- Strengthen village financial structures as platforms for savings, investment and productive enterprise.
- Develop partnerships that mobilise technical expertise, finance, markets, technology and implementation capacity.
- Build sustainable agricultural enterprises serving local, national and regional markets.

5. Core Areas of Operation

Smallholder Farmer & Cooperative Support — Establishing and strengthening farmer groups, cooperatives and Farmer Producer Organisations; production planning, capacity building, enterprise development and market linkage.

Farmer Producer Organisations — Supporting organised production, aggregation, quality management, bargaining capacity and access to formal markets.

Agricultural Off-taking & Aggregation — Coordinating producer groups, aggregating commodities, supporting quality and quantity management and connecting farmers with buyers and processors.

Value Addition & Agro-processing — Developing value-added products including cooking oil, soybean and groundnut products, nutritional foods, livestock feeds, tomato products and other commercially viable agricultural products.

Agricultural Marketing — Developing retail, wholesale, supermarket, institutional, processor and regional market channels for raw and processed agricultural products.

Youth Empowerment Programme — Linking young people to vocational and agricultural skills, entrepreneurship, productive equipment, startup support and enterprise opportunities, including agriculture, agribusiness and agro-processing.

Village Bank Enhancement Programme — Strengthening village savings and loan groups through financial literacy, governance, savings mobilisation, investment planning, enterprise development and market linkage.

Agribusiness Consultancy & Enterprise Support — Enterprise planning, market assessment, value-chain development, cooperative development, agricultural investment planning and capacity building.

6. Integrated Value-Chain Model

Farmer Mobilisation → Producer Organisation → Production Support → Aggregation → Off-taking → Processing/Value Addition → Packaging → Marketing → Consumer

This model positions Papina Farms as a bridge between agricultural producers and markets while creating opportunities for value retention, employment, enterprise development and local economic participation.

7. Key Commodities & Enterprises

- Crops: soybeans, groundnuts, maize, rice, beans and legumes, sunflower, horticultural crops, tomatoes, bananas, cassava and other commercially viable crops.
- Livestock: poultry and livestock feed enterprises.
- Fisheries: aquaculture and fisheries initiatives.
- Agro-processing: cooking oil, nutritional products, animal feeds, tomato products and other value-added agricultural products.
- Forestry: sustainable pine and blue-gum plantation/woodlot development.

8. Target Beneficiaries & Markets

Papina Farms works with and seeks to serve smallholder farmers, agricultural cooperatives, Farmer Producer Organisations, women and youth groups, community enterprises, processors, retailers, wholesalers, institutions, agro-dealers, livestock producers, investors and development programmes. Target markets include local, national and wider SADC opportunities.

9. Strategic Partnerships

Papina Farms recognises that sustainable agricultural transformation requires collaboration among government, development partners, farmer organisations, training institutions, financial institutions and the private sector.

Priority stakeholders include UNDP, Smallholder Agricultural Cooperatives, Farmer Producer Organisations, the Ministry responsible for Youth, TEVET Malawi, technical colleges, government institutions, development partners, private-sector buyers, processors, financial institutions and investors.

10. Partnership Opportunities

- Farmer Development: producer organisation establishment, cooperative strengthening and agricultural commercialisation.
- Market Linkage & Off-taking: structured commodity procurement and long-term supply relationships.
- Agro-processing: investment, technology and technical partnerships in value-added products.
- Youth Empowerment: skills training, equipment, startup financing, mentorship and enterprise development.
- Village Financial Inclusion: strengthening community savings, investment and enterprise platforms.
- Agricultural Investment: production, aggregation, storage, processing, livestock, horticulture, fisheries and marketing.
- Programme Implementation: local mobilisation, training, market linkage and implementation support.

11. Development & Economic Impact

Papina Farms aims to contribute to increased farmer incomes, stronger producer organisations, youth employment, women's and community economic participation, improved market access, reduced post-harvest losses, local agro-processing, food and nutrition security and increased value retention within Malawi's agricultural economy.

12. Sustainability & Growth Direction

Papina Farms' growth strategy is based on commercially sustainable relationships across the agricultural value chain. Priorities include expanding farmer networks, strengthening aggregation and off-taking, increasing processing capacity, developing market-ready products, scaling youth and village enterprise programmes and mobilising strategic investment.

13. Why Partner With Papina Farms?

- Malawian agribusiness with roots in smallholder farmer and cooperative development.
- Integrated model linking farmers, markets, off-taking, value addition and marketing.
- Practical platform for connecting development programmes with commercial agricultural opportunities.
- Strong focus on youth, community enterprise and inclusive economic participation.
- Partnership-oriented approach for government, development partners, training institutions, buyers and investors.

14. Conclusion

Papina Farms Ltd seeks to be a reliable partner in Malawi's agricultural transformation by connecting smallholder farmers to organised production, markets, value addition, enterprise development and investment. Building on its cooperative origins, the company is positioning itself as an inclusive and commercially focused agribusiness platform capable of working with public, private and development-sector stakeholders.
